Week of 2/24/2020

Overall Notes

- We have made the purchase order for the components that we need.
- Just recently finished the proposal report and have scheduled the milestones to be met.
- It seems that we all have the same general idea of our path to take for the project, but there might also be a little bit of difference when it comes to the specifics. However, it's something that will be easy to fix by just talking it more in depth in our meetings.
- For now, we will keep talking about the design for our hardware and software system until we get the components, which we will then go ahead and start testing.
- It seems like Shawn will be the one who will make up most of the making of the iOS App since he is the only one that has a Mac.
